If you are in ministry as a full time pastor, lay elder, or concerned church member, take these words into consideration for your church. Davis does an amazing job at explaining his own experiences of revitalizing his church while supporting his actions biblically. My only concern is that the book does not go into any specifics on how to deal with church discipline and the author does not provide any personal examples as to how it was received. This book is easy to read and easy to follow. I was convicted from the teachings in this book and I hope you will be too.

This is a great book for church leaders. It offers great insights and practical applications for church revitalization. Dr. Davis writes from his own experiences at FBC Durham. Dr. Davis views on the role of women in the church maybe contradicted to your views. The area of church discipline he did not expand a lot and he did not offer any examples on how that was received by the church. Easy to read. Short chapters.

power statement on the revitalization of the local church

Just starting the book but am gaining valuable definitions of health vs "sick" immediately in the first chapter.

"Revitalize" by Andrew Davis is a great read for a pastor or layperson who wants to see God bring life back into a church. The writer is a pastor and has around 20 years of experience at a local church and has seen God do amazing things throughout the years. In a day where people leave a church over frivolous issues and where church planting is sometimes overemphasized, it is refreshing to see a challenge to be faithful to God and "bloom where you are planted". The book is just over 200 pages and addresses issues such as: 1. 11 marks of a dying church. 2. Revitalization will come only through God's power and not a self-willed leader. 3. True encounters with God involves both pleasure and terror. 4. 2 effects of Spirit-led prayer. 5. Major themes of a godly vision (hint: not something that you "dream up" by listening to what God wants to do in and through you). 6. 10 reasons to be humble towards your opponents. 7. No church will be revitalized without courage. 8. Allow God time to work in His church. 9. Discouragement is probably the devil's greatest and most effective weapon. 10. 12 key concepts that need to be communicated. The title is very readable, insightful, and smoothly transitions from topic to topic. Will be an excellent reference as I am involved in two local churches. Recommended. I was given a review copy by Baker Publishing in exchange for a fair review.

I first heard of Andrew Davis about 8 years ago when I stumbled across his guide to extended Scripture memory. I knew very little of him then, but I was greatly helped by this excellent resource. Then, a few years ago, I read Davis' book on discipleship and sanctification "An Infinite Journey. After greatly enjoying this book, I decided to learn a bit more about the man. WHO IS ANDREW DAVIS? Davis is the pastor of First Baptist Church of Durham, NC, a church that he has now pastored for almost 20 years. Though FBC Durham is currently a healthy and vibrant church, this was not always the case. In fact, when Davis accepted the call to pastor FBC Durham in 1998, the congregation was far from healthy. How did this church move from point A to point B? How did God use Andrew Davis to bring life and revitalization into a dying congregation? A NEW BOOK That story, and the principles learned, is the subject of Davis' newest book: Revitalize: Biblical Keys to Helping Your Church Come Alive Again. Through the experiences and lessons learned by Davis over the last 20 years, God has given him a heart for churches, church leaders, and pastors who are in need of biblical help and practical resources in revitalizing a dying church. After a couple of introductory chapters stressing the importance of the local church and the care that Christ has for the health and vitality of His church, Davis dives right into 14 lessons that he sees as essential (and biblical) in any church revitalization:1. Embrace Christ’s Ownership of the Church2. Be Holy3. Rely on God, Not on Yourself4. Rely on God’s Word, Not on Techniques5. Saturate the Church in Prayer6. Cast a Clear Vision7. Be Humble toward Opponents8. Be Courageous9. Be Patient10. Be Discerning11. Wage War against Discouragement12. Develop and Establish Men as Leaders13. Become Supple on Worship14. Embrace the Two Journeys of Disciple-MakingIn every one of these 14 chapters, each focusing on a different essential of church revitalization, Davis gives biblical support, practical suggestions, and personal illustrations of how He learned this principle in his time at FBC Durham. In each of these chapters, you will find biblically and theologically sound practical challenges and advise as it relates to church revitalization.WHY I LOVE THIS BOOKIn his foreword to the book, Mark Dever gives several reasons for why he likes this book. I couldn’t agree more, nor could I articulate it as well as Dever, so here are his reasons:- This book exalts God- This book is biblically and theologically sound and historically informed- This book is instructive- This book’s author understands both what the gospel is and what a church is- This book is practical- This book will help pastorsAmen and Amen.CONCLUSIONIf you are a pastor, church leader, elder, training for ministry, or a member of a church in need of revitalization, you will find this book to be an excellent and indispensable resource for the task that lay ahead of you. Though I do not have the privilege of knowing Andrew Davis personally, I am incredibly thankful for him and how the Lord has chosen to use him for His glory through the revitalization of FBC Durham. Now, through this resource, Davis has given the Church a wonderful resource to help pastors and churches across the country and the world turn to God and His Word for the health of their local church in order to bring glory and honor to the head of the church – Jesus Christ.
