"The Taunton Press is justly famous for publishing high quality books and magazinesÂ about homebuilding and home design -- not to mention the influential Fine Homebuilding magazine. Now they have launched what I would call the essentialÂ home building bible: The Complete Visual Guide To Building A House, by John Carroll, builder and regular contributor to Fine Homebuilding,Â and Taunton Press illustratorÂ Chuck Lockhart". Dan Gregory, Houseplans.comÂ

Chuck Lockhart is an artist, living in New Preston CT. He was the art director for Fine Homebuilding magazine for over 18 years and now serves as an illustrator for Taunton Books. John Carroll has been building and repairing houses since the late 1960s and is still an active remodeling contractor in Durham, NC. He is a frequent contributor to Fine Homebuilding Magazine and is the author of "Working Alone" and "Measuring, Marking & Layout.

I actually enjoyed reading this book a lot. I liked how it had all the visuals and I think its great for anyone looking to build or design their own home.

Really good content very informative. If you are a person with no construction knowledge this is the book for you.

great book for beginners who have no experience. The fact that it is visual helps beginners see the project, rather than using a bunch of terms they cannot follow without actually, doing the job.

A perfectly done primer for anyone interested in the subject.

Amazing quality book...hardcover, heavy pages and great information from basement to roof for a new tradesmen or just someone looking for a guide on building/repairing a home. I bought it for my step-son who is a carpenter and he really liked it.

Very informative book about building a home with great visual pages.

Very clear for visual folks like me.

This book is well written so a novice can understand the entire building process, but I believe that the professional will also benefit from reading this book.
